Thank you for joining our conference today!

We are delighted to mark a decade of championing human rights and protecting vulnerable people from harmful practices like female genital mutilation (FGM) and forced marriage. From our beginnings as Oxford Against Cutting, our team is committed to advocacy and empowerment of women and girls, helping shape a movement dedicated to safeguarding dignity and equality.

Our charity originated from an FGM awareness-raising film event in October 2014, screened in a small community hall in East Oxford. Since then, we have evolved into an established educational charity, delivering comprehensive learning programmes on a broad spectrum of issues, including 'honour'-based abuse, forced marriage, pornography and body image. Our work now extends across the Thames Valley and the West Midlands, promoting social change.

We are delighted to officially launch our new name, Sundial Centre for Education on Harmful Practices. Our name reflects our mission and values - just as sundials guide people by casting light and fostering awareness, our charity strives to bring understanding and visibility to important issues that are often overlooked.

Our dedicated team brings together diverse backgrounds, languages and expertise to drive our mission forward. We ensure that people from affected communities remain at the forefront of all our activities. Their lived experience shapes our work, reinforcing our commitment to impactful and inclusive solutions.

We don't have a "face" of the organisation - we have many. We're proud to be a diverse team where no one person 'holds the mic' all the time and where decisions are made together. Please talk to us and ask us questions throughout the day.

We are grateful for your support in coming together to celebrate 10 years of progress, resilience and hope for a future free from harm.
